

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

It is a real pleasure for the Editorial Committee of HOW to keep producing this journal as it allows us to communicate with English teachers in Colombia and abroad. As with previous issues, one of our main concerns is to offer a wide range of possibilities for the practice and learning of English as a second or foreign language.

This year we have received more contributions for the journal which indicates that we are paving the way for the indexation of our journal in the near future. This is a goal that we hope to accomplish with the support of our readers and contributors to improve the standard of the teaching of English in Colombia and hopefully overseas.

This issue includes a good selection of papers of fine stature that tackle various topics both from a theoretical and a practical perspective. Thus the articles here presented touch on such areas like the communicative approach, writing strategies and processes, studies on learning styles and strategies, culture, CALL, and different proposals on content-based instruction.

We hope our readers will enjoy both this year's ASOCOPI Congress and this edition of HOW.
